TO THE MEMORY

OF THE

GALLANT AND LAMENTED

MAJ. GEN. SAMUEL SMITH,

THE HERO OF TWO WARS,

AN ENLIGHTENED STATESMAN AND AN HONEST AGENT, WHOSE DAYS FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD OF MANHOOD TO UP-WARDS OF FOURSCORE YEARS, WAS DEVOTED TO HIS COUNTRY AND HIS COUNTRY'S GOOD: TO HIM, AND TO THE CITIZEN SOLDIER WHO SERVED WITH HIM AT THE PERIOD HEREIN REFERRED TO, THIS WORK IS RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED BY

THE PUBLISHER.

ADVERTISEMENT.

In the compilation of this volume, the publisher has been guided by no other wish than to present a correct and impartial statement of the various Divisions, Brigades, Regiments and Companies, with the rank of every citizen who had the honor of serving his country on the twelfth and thirteenth of September, 1814, at North Point and Fort McHenry.

The extracts are copied from the original rolls on file in the 3d auditor's office of the War Department, and should errors occur in any of the companies, by the insertion of the names of individuals who were not present at the battle, or by the non-appearance of others, and by the varied rank of any of the officers, the error must be attributed to their own accounting officer, and be satisfied that it was the wish of no one to hold back the services of any, or to add any renown where it did not justly belong.

The publisher also regrets his inability to obtain anything like correct information respecting the Virginia and Baltimore County troops—as soon as received, it will be printed.

THEODORE BLAND, Secretary.

BALTIMORE.

At the recommendation of the Committee of Vigilance and Safety, the people commenced their labors to fortify the city, on Sunday the 27th ult. The work done demonstrates their power and zeal, to the astonishment of all who behold it. Baltimore has long been remarkable for the patriotism and liberal spirit of her citizens; and her high character for these qualities is fully maintained by the free offering of men and money for the purposes of defence. In the meantime, volunteers and militia from the adjacent parts of Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia, have flocked in to our aid. We are restrained, by the request of the Committee of Vigilance, from mentioning any particular; but the honorable record shall yet be made. We restrain the desire to notice these things because enjoined by the committee; for we are very sure the enemy is apprised of almost every thing that is transacted here; but he has learnt nothing to our discredit. The means of defence have given confidence to the people, many families who had left the city have returned; nothing is relaxed; every thing goes on as though an attack were immediately expected, but with the exception of performing their military duties, the people have their usual composure and quiet. To our brethren who have flown to our assistance, we are greatly indebted, as well for the decorum of their conduct in the city, as their patriotism in coming to the camp. The sudden collection of so many people, of all classes and conditions, might have been expected to create much confusion and disorder; but no event has yet occurred, that we have heard of, which can sully the character of an individual soldier; and the city is as quiet, (the sound of the drum, or the rattling of wagons pertaining to the different corps, excepted) as ever it was. This tribute is due to the gentlemen associated to repulse the enemy. Major General Smith, of the Maryland militia (of Mud Fort memory) commands the troops collected specially for the defence of Baltimore. Brigadier General Winder has under him the forces belonging to his military district. He is now here, and the whole is acting in concert.

A WHOPPER.

BALTIMORE.—The following, from "his majesty's printing office at Bermuda" as the article is headed, is the queerest and most lying account of the late attack upon Baltimore that we have yet seen, some "domestic manufactures" excepted:

"Sept. 23.—It appears from report, that after destroying Washington and taking possession of Alexandria, the small body of brave men under General Ross made an attack on Baltimore; the enemy had sunk the vessels, and but two or three small craft with bombs could approach: they succeeded, however, in driving the Americans from the fort; having to contend with a very superior force, eventually retired, as the occupation of the town, which might have been gained, would be a poor compensation for the sacrifice of many valuable lives."

ATTACK UPON BALTIMORE.

To detail, with reasonable accuracy, the minutiae of the events that have happened at Baltimore since Sunday morning, the 11th inst., when the enemy made his appearance, to the time of his departure on the 15th, is not easily done: and we shall endeavor to give a succinct narration of the proceedings, with a steady eye to the truth of each matter referred to; avoiding, nevertheless, every thing that may tend to increase the information of the incendiary foe, as to our means of resources. Hence an account of our troops or works will not be expected. Sufficient is it to say, that the same force would make much less impression now than it did, or could have done, at the time of attack.

After the affair at Bladensburg and capture of Washington, an attack upon this city was confidently expected. Indeed, General Ross had fixed upon it for his winter quarters; and boasted, that with the force he had, he would go where he pleased through Maryland. Thus forewarned, considerable additions were made to the defences of the place—some of the troops of Gen. Winder's command were collected—Rodgers and Perry were here; and a good many noble volunteers flocked in from the adjacent parts of our own state and from Virginia and Pennsylvania. The Baltimore brigade was taken en masse into the service of the United States; and the whole submitted to the direction of Major General Smith, of the Maryland militia.

On Saturday, the 10th inst., we had information that the enemy was ascending the bay, and on Sunday morning his ships were seen at the mouth of our river, the Patapsco, in number from 40 to 50.—Some of his vessels entered the river, while others proceeded to North Point, (at the mouth of the Patapsco), distant 12 miles from the city, and commenced the debarkation of their troops in the night, which was finished early next morning. In the mean time the frigates, bomb-ketches, and small vessels approached and ranged themselves in a formidable line to cannonade the fort, and the town.—The frigates were lightened before they entered the river—and the ships of line lay off North Point, to overawe us and protect the whole force.

The force that landed consisted of about 9,000 men—viz.: 5,000 soldiers, 2,000 marines, and 2,000 sailors. The first under Major-General Ross—the latter commanded by the famous Admiral Cockburn. The troops were a part of Wellington's "invincibles." Some works were erecting not far from North Point to arrest their progress; but their incipient state forbade a stand being made at them; and the enemy marched four miles towards us uninterrupted, except by a few flying shots from the cavalry. Here they were met by General Stricker with his entire Baltimore brigade, (except that he had only one company of the regiment of artillery) consisting of Col. Biays' cavalry, the rifle corps, and the 5th, 6th, 27th, 39th and 51st regiments of infantry, commanded respectively by Lieut. Cols. Sterett, M'Donald, Long, Fowler and Amey. In the 5th was incorporated an elegant uniformed company of volunteers from York, Penn., under Capt. Spangler; and in the 39th, Captain Metzger's fine company of volunteers from Hanover, Penn., and Capt. Quantril's from Hagerstown, Maryland; and in the 6th, Capt. Dixon's volunteers from Marietta, Penn.—all the rest were city troops; and the whole, including Capt. Montgomery's company of artillery (with 6 four pounders) amounted to about 3,200 men. The rest of our forces were judiciously stationed in or near the various defences, &c. About 1 o'clock a party of 150 or 200 men, consisting of Capt. Leeving's and Capt. Howard's companies of the 5th regiment, and Capt. Aisquith's rifle corps, were detached from the line to feel the enemy, and bring on the battle; they were accompanied by a few artillerists with one of their pieces. Before they expected it, they were attacked by the British, in very superior numbers, and driven in with some loss after a few fires, to the main body. As the enemy advanced, the artillery opened a destructive fire upon them, which was returned from 2 nine pounders, and the action became general along the line of the 5th and 27th, which were in front. The 39th and 51st were in the rear of these, and the 6th advantageously posted still nearer the city, to protect and cover the whole. The fire from the two first named regiments, as well as from the artillery,* was very active and uncommonly certain for about an hour. Of the 5th, much was expected, but the 27th behaved, at least as gallantly. The men took deliberate aim, and the carnage was great—the “invincibles” dodging to the ground, and crawling in a bending posture, to avoid the militia—the “yeomen” they were taught so much to despise. When the 5th and 27th (between which was placed the artillery) were outflanked by the much greater force of the enemy, they retired in better order than could have been expected under a galling fire; and they retired reluctantly at the repeated command of their officers. The artillery had been drawn off a little while before. The right of the 39th was gallantly engaged, but the 51st took no part in the action; and it was not at that time and place expected that the 6th would share in it, else (under its veteran Colonel, a soldier of the revolution, and one who met the same foe under Pulaski) it would, no doubt, have distinguished itself. The cavalry, though they performed very severe and important duties, had but little to do in the battle. The whole number of our men actually engaged did not exceed 1,700.

Nearly as much, perhaps, being done at this point as was expected, our force retreated towards the city. The enemy followed slowly, and on Tuesday night approached within about two miles of our entrenchments. Measures were taken to cut them off and punish their temerity; but before General Winder with the Virginia militia, and a squadron of the United States cavalry, could bring his plans fully to bear, the British suspecting the design or not liking the appearance of our works, decamped suddenly in the night and embarked with such precipitation that, though closely pursued, a few prisoners only were taken. But the pursuing force merited and have received the thanks of their general; and the whole body collected is entitled to the gratitude of Baltimore and of their country, for the sufferings they so patiently and patriotically endured, being compelled to sleep, if sleep was allowed, in the open air, with the heavens for their canopy, for four nights, during the chief part of which it rained pretty constantly and sometimes heavily. They also received their refreshments irregularly; the whole being packed up in prudent preparation of events that might have happened.

But the attack on fort M'Henry was terribly grand and magnificent. The enemy's vessels formed a great half-circle in front of the works on the 12th, but out of reach of our guns, and also those of the battery at the Lazaretto, on the opposite side of the great cove or basin around the head of which the city is built. Fort M'Henry is about 2 miles from the city, a “light little” with some finely planned batteries, mounted with heavy cannon, as the British very well know. At 6 o'clock on Tuesday morning, six bomb and some rocket vessels commenced the attack, keeping such a respectful distance as to make the fort rather a target than an opponent; though Major Armistead, the gallant commander, and his brave garrison fired occasionally to let the enemy know the place was not given up!! Four or five bombs were frequently in the air at a time, and, making a double explosion, with the noise of the foolish rockets and the firings of the fort, Lazaretto and our barges, created a horrible clatter. [Many of these bombs have since been found entire—they weigh, when full of their combustibles, about 210 or 220 lbs., and they threw them much further than our long 42 pounders would reach.] Thus it lasted until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the enemy, growing more courageous, dropped nearer the fort, and gave the garrison and batteries a little of the chance they wanted. The balls now flew like hail-stones, and the Britons slipped their cables, hoisted their sails and were off in a moment, but not without damage. When they got out of harm's way they renewed the "magnanimous" attack, throwing their bombs with an activity excited by their mortification. So they went on until about 1 o'clock in the morning, our battery now and then firing a single gun. At this time, aided by the darkness of the night and screened by a flame they had kindled, one or two rocket or bomb vessels and many barges, manned with 1,200 chosen men, passed Fort M'Henry and proceeded up the Patapsco, to assail the town and fort in the rear, and, perhaps, effect a landing. The weak sighted mortals now thought the great deed was done—they gave three cheers, and began to throw their missive weapons. But, alas! their cheering was quickly turned to groaning, and the cries and screams of their wounded and drowning people soon reached the shore; for Forts M'Henry and Covington with the City Battery and the Lazaretto and barges, vomited an iron flame upon them, in heated balls, and a storm of heavy bullets flew upon them from the great semi-circle of large guns and gallant hearts. The houses in the city were shaken to their foundations, for never, perhaps from the time of the invention of cannon to the present day, were the same number of pieces fired with so rapid succession; particularly from Fort Covington, where a party of Rodger's really invincible crew were posted. Barney's flotilla men, at the City Battery, maintained the high reputation they had before earned. The other vessels also began to fire—and the heavens were lighted with flame, and all was a continued explosion for about half an hour. Having got this taste of what was prepared for them (and it was a mere taste) the enemy precipitately retired with his remaining force, battered and crippled, to his respectful distance; the darkness of the night and his ceasing to fire (which was the only guide our people had) preventing annihilation. All was for sometime still—and the silence was awful—but being beyond danger some of his vessels resumed the bombardment, which continued until morning—in all about 24 hours, during which there were thrown not less than 1,500 of these great bombs, besides many rockets and some round shot. They must have suffered excessively in this affair—two of their large barges were found sunk ; and in them were yet some dead men. But what the loss really was it is probable we never shall know. They also were at other times injured by Fort M'Henry, the Lazaretto and the barges. I myself believe I saw several shot take effect during Tuesday afternoon.

The preservation of our people in the fort is calculated to excite in a wonderful manner our gratitude to that GREAT BEING, without whose knowledge "a sparrow does not fall to the ground." Only four were killed and about 20 wounded, and 2 or $300 will repair all the damages the fortresses sustained!

Lieut. Clagget, of Captain Nicholson's company of artillery, was the only officer killed in the fort. His friend, Sergeant Clemm, of the same corps, received his death at the same time. They were respectable merchants.

The Admiral had fully calculated on taking the fort in two hours. Its surrender was spoken of as a matter of course. He said that when it was taken and the shipping destroyed, "he would think about terms for the city!" All about and in the fort is such ample evidence of his zeal to perform his promise, that it seems impossible to believe that greater damage was not done than was really sustained. The gallant and accomplished Armistead, through watching and excessive fatigue (for he had other great duties to do besides defending his post) flagged as soon as the fight was done, and now lies very ill ; but not dangerously, we trust, though severely afflicted. Many of his gallant companions were also exhausted, but have generally recruited their strength.

To return to the field engagement. The force of the enemy in the battle may have amounted to 4,000 men. They were fine looking fellows, but seemed very unwilling to meet the "yankee" bullets—their dodging from the cannon and stooping before the musketry has already been noticed. The prisoners and deserters say that for the time the affair lasted, and the men engaged, they never received so destructive a fire: and this may well be, for our men fired not by word of command only, but also at an object. Of the 21st British regiment about 500 were landed—on the morning of the 13th they found 171 killed, wounded and missing. Their whole loss may be safely estimated at from 500 to 700 men. Major General ROSS, who did "not care if it rained militia," the incendiary of the capitol, paid the forfeit of that act by his death. He was killed in the early part of the action ; and there is reason to believe that two or three other officers high in command met the same fate. Ross was a brave man and an able commander—and if he had been engaged in another system of warfare would have claimed our respectful remembrance. We may admire, but we cannot esteem his memory. The character of Moor in Schiller's play of the "Robbers," notwithstanding its grandeur, disgusts by the business to which his great talents and accomplishments were devoted. So it was with Ross. His orders, perhaps, may afford some sort of an excuse for his violation of the rules of civilized war. His death was probably the immediate cause why an attack upon our works was not made. General Brooks, on whom the command devolved, would not risk the enterprize.

Our whole loss in the affair was about 20 killed, 90 wounded and 47 prisoners and missing.* The officers killed were James Lowry Donaldson, Esq., adjutant of the brave 27th regiment, and one of the representatives of this city in the house of delegates of Maryland—he fell while encouraging his brethren in arms: and Lieut. Andre of the "Gray Yagers," a valuable young man. Major Moore of the 27th was severely, but not dangerously wounded. Major Heath of the 5th had two horses shot under him, and Major Barry's of the same regiment, was also killed. The cavalry lost several horses, and some of them on the look-out were taken prisoners. For the present, we shall only add that Brigadier General Stricker, whose urbanity has long endeared him to the citizens under his command, and the people at large, behaved as became the high charge entrusted to him as a soldier. He has the entire confidence of his Brigade. Robert G. Harper, Esq., who volunteered his services as an aid-de-camp, also greatly exerted himself in the hottest part of the fire to encourage and give steadiness to our troops.

The enemy's bomb-vessels, we are told, are much wrecked by their own fire. This may well be supposed when the fact is stated that at every discharge they were forced two feet into the water by the force of it, thus straining every part from stem to stern.

Never was the mortification of an invader more complete than that of our enemy. Beaten by the militia and defeated by the fort, he went away in the worst possible humor, and a total loss that may amount to not less than 800 men.

The following is from a London paper of June 17—"It is understood that the grand expedition preparing at Bordeaux for America, under the gallant lord Hill, is destined for the Cheapeake direct. Our little army in Canada, will at the same instant be directed to make a movement in the direction of the Susquehanna; and both armies will therefore, in all probability meet at Washington, Philadelphia or Baltimore. The seat of the American government, BUT MORE PARTICULARLY BALTIMORE is to be the immediate object of attack. In the diplomatic circles it is also rumored that our naval and military commanders on the American station have no power to conclude any armistice or suspension of arms. They carry with them certain terms, which will be offered to the American government at the point of the bayonet. The terms of course are not made public; but there is reason to believe that America will be left in a much worse situation, as a naval and commercial power, than she was at the commencement of the war."

* Twenty-two of the wounded were paroled on the field—47 are on board the fleet, (many of them gentlemen of the first respectability,) and it is believed will be sent to Halifax, though all possible means to effect their release were used. By a flag they were all liberally supplied.

HEAD-QUARTERS, Baltimore, September 19, 1814.

SIR—In compliance with the promise contained in my letter of the 15th instant, I have now the honor of stating, that the enemy landed between seven and eight thousand men on Monday, the 12th instant, at North Point, fourteen miles distant from this town. Anticipating this debarkation, General Stricker had been detached on Sunday evening with a portion of his brigade on the North Point road. Major Randal, of the Baltimore county militia, having under his command a light corps of riflemen and musketry taken from General Stansbury's brigade and the Pennsylvania volunteers, was detached to the mouth of Bear creek, with orders to co-operate with General Stricker, and to check any landing which the enemy might attempt in that quarter. On Monday, Brigadier General Stricker took a position at the junction of the two roads leading from this place to North Point, having his right flanked by Bear creek, and his left by a marsh. He here awaited the approach of the enemy, having sent on an advanced corps under the command of Major Heath of the 5th regiment. This advance was met by that of the enemy, and after some skirmishing it returned to the line, the main body of the enemy being at a short distance in rear of their advance. Between two and three o'clock, the enemy's whole force came up and commenced the battle by some discharges of rockets, which were succeeded by the cannon from both sides, and soon after the action became general along the line. General Stricker gallantly maintained his ground against a great superiority of numbers during the space of an hour and twenty minutes, when the regiment on his left (the 51st) giving way, he was under the necessity of retiring to the ground in his rear, where he had stationed one regiment as a reserve. He here formed his brigade; but the enemy not thinking it advisable to pursue, he, in compliance with previous arrangements, fell back and took post on the left of my entrenchments, and half a mile in advance of them. In this affair the citizen soldiers of Baltimore, with the exception of the 51st regiment, have maintained the reputation they so deservedly acquired at Bladensburg, and their brave and skilful leader has confirmed the confidence which we had all so justly placed in him. I take the liberty of referring you to his letter for the more particular mention of the individuals who, new to warfare, have shown the coolness and valor of veterans; and who, by their conduct on this occasion, have given their country and their city an assurance of what may be expected from them when their services are again required. I cannot dismiss the subject without expressing the heartfelt satisfaction I experience in thus bearing testimony to the courage and good conduct of my fellow townmen. About the time General Stricker had taken the ground just mentioned, he was joined by Brigadier General Winder, who had been stationed on the west side of the city, but was now ordered to march with General Douglas's brigade of Virginia militia and the United States' Dragoons under Captain Bird, and take post on the left of General Stricker. During these movements, the brigades of Generals Stansbury and Foreman, the seamen and marines under Commodore Rodgers, the Pennsylvania volunteers under Colonels Cobean and Findley, the Baltimore artillery under Colonel Harris, and the Marine artillery under Capt. Stiles, manned the trenches and the batteries—all prepared to receive the enemy. We remained in this situation during the night.

On Tuesday the enemy appeared in front of my entrenchments at the distance of two miles, on the Philadelphia road, from whence he had a full view of our position. He manœuvred during the morning towards our left, as if with the intention of making a circuitous march and coming down on the Harford or York roads. Generals Winder and Stricker were ordered to adapt their movements to those of the enemy so as to baffle this supposed intention. They executed this order with great skill and judgment by taking an advantageous position, stretching from my left across the country, when the enemy was likely to approach the quarter he seemed to threaten. This movement induced the enemy to concentrate his forces (between one and two o'clock) in my front, pushing his advance to within a mile of us, driving in our videttes and showing an intention of attacking us that evening. I immediately drew Generals Winder and Stricker nearer to the left of my entrenchments and to the right of the enemy, with the intention of their falling on his right or rear should he attack me; or, if declined it, of attacking him in the morning. To this movement and to the strength of my defences, which the enemy had the fairest opportunity of observing, I am induced to attribute his retreat, which was commenced at half past one o'clock on Wednesday morning. In this he was so favored by the extreme darkness and a continued rain, that we did not discover it until day-light. I consented to General Winder's pursuing with the Virginia brigade and the United States Dragoons; at the same time Major Randal was dispatched with his light corps in pursuit on the enemy's right, whilst the whole of the militia cavalry was put in motion for the same object. All the troops were, however, so worn out with continued watching, and with being under arms during three days and nights, exposed the greater part of the time to very inclement weather, that it was found impracticable to do any thing more than pick up a few stragglers. The enemy commenced his embarkation that evening, and completed it the next day at one o'clock. It would have been impossible, even had our troops been in a condition to act offensively, to have cut off any part of the enemy's rear guard during the embarkation, as the point where it was effected was defended from our approach by a line of defences extending from Back River to Humphrey's creek on the Patapsco, thrown up by ourselves previous to their arrival.

I have now the pleasure of calling your attention to the brave commander of Fort M'Henry, Major Armistead, and to the operations confided to that quarter. The enemy made his approach by water at the same time that his army was advancing on the land, and commenced a discharge of bombs and rockets at the Fort as soon as he got within range of it. The situation of Major Armistead was peculiarly trying—the enemy having taken his position at such a distance as to render offensive operations on the part of the Fort entirely fruitless, whilst their bombs and rockets were every moment falling in and about it—the officers and men being at the same time entirely exposed. The vessels, however, had the temerity to approach somewhat nearer—they were as soon compelled to withdraw. During the night, whilst the enemy on land was retreating, and whilst the bombardment was most severe, two or three rocket vessels and barges succeeded in getting up the Ferry Branch; but they were soon compelled to retire, by the Forts in that quarter, commanded by Lieut. Newcomb, of the navy, and Lieut. Webster, of the flotilla. These Forts also destroyed one of the barges, with all on board.—The barges and battery at the Lazaretto, under the command of Lieut. Rutter of the flotilla, kept up a brisk, and it is believed, a successful fire during the hottest period of the bombardment. Maj. Armistead being seriously ill in consequence of his continued exposure to the weather, has rendered it impossible for him to send in his report. It is not therefore, in my power to do justice to those gallant individuals, who partook with him the danger of a tremendous bombardment, without the ability of retorting, and without that security, which in more regular fortifications is provided for such occasions. The only loss sustained in the Fort is, I understand, about 27 killed and wounded—amongst the former I have to lament the fall of Lieuts. Claggett and Clemm, who were both estimable citizens and useful officers.

From General Stricker's brigade, the return of the killed and wounded has not yet come in. It is supposed, however, to amount to about 150—among the former, this city has to regret the loss of its representative in the State Legislature, James Lowry Donaldson, Esq., Adjutant of the 27th regiment. This gentleman will ever be remembered by his constituents for his zeal and talents, and by his corps for his bravery and military knowledge.

I cannot conclude this report without informing you of the great aid I have derived from Commodore Rodgers. He was ever present and ever ready to afford his useful council, and to render his important services. His presence, with that of his gallant officers and seamen, gave confidence to every one.

The enemy's loss in his attempt on Baltimore, amounts, as near as we can ascertain it, to between six or seven hundred killed, wounded and missing—Gen. Ross was certainly killed.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

S. SMITH, Major General Com'g.

Colonel JAMES MONROE, Acting Secretary of War.

Copy of a letter from Brigadier General Stricker, dated

HEAD-QUARTERS 3d Brigade—Baltimore, Sept. 15, 1814.

MAJOR GEN. S. SMITH,

SIR—I have the honor to report to you, that, in obedience to your orders, I marched from Baltimore on Sunday the 11th inst. with part of my brigade, as the advance corps of the army under your command. My force consisted of 550 of the 5th regiment under Lieut. Col. Sterett; 620 of the 6th, under Lieut. Col. McDonald; 500 of the 27th, under Lieut. Col. Long; 450 of the 39th, under Lieut. Col. Fowler; 700 of the 51st under Lieut. Col. Amey; 150 riflemen under Capt. Dyer; 140 cavalry under Lieut. Col. Blays, and the Union Artillery of 75 men, with six four-pounders, under Capt. Montgomery, making an aggregate of 3185 effective men. I moved towards North Point by the main road, at 8 o'clock P. M. reached the meeting-house near the head of Bear Creek, seven miles from this city. Here the brigade halted, with the exception of the cavalry, who were pushed forward to Gorsuch's farm three miles in advance, and the riflemen who took post near the blacksmith's shop two miles in advance of our encampment. At seven o'clock on the morning of the 12th, I received information from the advanced videttes that the enemy were debarking troops from and under cover of their gun vessels which lay off the bluff of North Point, within the mouth of Patapsco river. I immediately ordered back my baggage under a strong guard, moved forward the 5th and 27 regiments, and my artillery to the head of Longlog-lane (so called) resting the 5th with its right on the head of a branch of Bear Creek, and its left on the main North Point road, while the 27th was posted on the other side of the road in line with the 5th, its left extending towards a branch of Back river. The artillery I posted directly at the head of the lane in the interval between the 5th and 27th. The 39th occupied a ground 300 yards in the rear of the 27th, and the 51st the same distance in rear of the 5th, extending each parallel to the front line. The 6th regiment was thrown back to a position a short distance this side of Cook's tavern, and half a mile in the rear of the second line. My orders were, that the 5th and 27th should receive the enemy, and, if necessary, fall back through the 51st and 39th, and form on the right of the 6th or reserve regiment. The riflemen were ordered to the skirts of a thick low pine wood beyond the blacksmith's shop, with a large sedge field in front, that as the cavalry were still in advance who would inform of the enemy's approach, they might take advantage of the covering of the wood and annoy his advance. I soon learned that the enemy's advance party was moving rapidly up the main road, and as the cavalry continually announced their progress, I flattered myself with the hope that the riflemen would soon proclaim by a galling fire their still nearer approach. Imagine my chagrin when I perceived the whole rifle corps falling back on my main position, having too credulously listened to groundless information that the enemy were landing on Back river to cut them off. My hopes of early annoyance to the enemy being thus frustrated, I threw the riflemen on the right flank of my front line, thereby, with the addition of a few cavalry, very well securing that flank. My videttes soon brought information that the enemy in small force was enjoying himself at Gorsuch's farm. Insulted at the idea of a small marauding party thus daringly provoking chastisement, several of my officers volunteered their corps to dislodge it. Captain Levering's and Howard's companies from the 5th, about 150 in number, under Major Heath of that regiment; Capt. Aisquith's and a few other riflemen, in all about 70; one 4 pounder with 10 men under Lieut. Stiles, and the cavalry, were immediately pushed forward to punish the insolence of the enemy's advance; or, if his main body appeared, to give evidence of my wish for a general engagement. The latter purpose was soon answered; this small volunteer corps had proceeded scarcely half a mile before the main body of the enemy shewed itself, which was immediately attacked. The infantry and riflemen maintained a fire of some minutes, and retired with some loss in killed and wounded; the cavalry and artillery owing to the disadvantageous ground not being able to support them. In this skirmish, Major Heath's horse was killed under him. At half-past 2 o'clock, the enemy commenced throwing rockets across my left flank, which seemed harmless, and had no other effect than to prepare my line for the sound of the artillery, which soon commenced by us on the enemy's right column then pushing across towards my left, and returned by their six pounders and a howitzer upon my left and center. The cannonading was brisk for some minutes, when I ordered my fire to cease until the enemy should get within close range of cannister. Seeing that my left flank was the main object of the enemy, I brought up the 39th into line on the left of the 27th, and detached two pieces of artillery to the left of the 39th; still more securely to protect my left flank. Colonel Amey of the 51st was ordered to form his regiment at right angles with my line, resting his right near the left of the 39th regiment. The order being badly executed created for a moment some confusion in that quarter, but was soon rectified by the efforts of my Aide-de-camp and brigade Majors who corrected the error of Colonel Amey and posted the 51st in its ordered position. The enemy's right column displayed and advanced upon the 39th and 27th. The 51st unmindful of my object to use its fire in protection of my left flank in case an attempt should be made to turn it, totally forgetful of the honor of the brigade, and regardless of its own reputation, delivered one random fire and retreated precipitately, and in such confusion, as to render every effort of mine to rally them ineffective. Some disorder was occasioned in the second battalion of the 39th, by the flight of the 51st, and a few gave way. The fire now became general from left to right; my artillery in the centre poured forth an incessant volley of cannister upon the enemy's left column, who were endeavoring to gain the cover of a small log-house, about 50 yards in front of the 5th; which, however, precaution had been taken to fire, so soon as Captain Sadtler's Yagers from the 5th (who were originally posted therein) should be compelled to leave it. The enemy's line advanced about 10 minutes before 3 o'clock, with a severe fire which was well returned by the artillery, the whole 27th, the 5th except the three companies of Captain Levering, Howard and Sadtler, which were too much exhausted by the advanced skirmish of the two former—and the ordered retreat of the first battalion of the 39th, who maintained its ground in despite of the disgraceful example set by the intended support on the left. The fire was incessant till about 15 minutes before 4 o'clock, when, finding that my line now 1,400 strong, was insufficient to withstand the superior numbers of the enemy, and my left flank being exposed by the desertion of the 51st, I was constrained to order a movement back to the reserve regiment, under Colonel M'Donald, which was well posted to receive the retired line which mostly rallied well. On forming with the 6th, the fatigued state of the regiments and corps which had retired, and the probability that my right flank might be turned by a quick movement of the enemy in that direction, induced me, after proper deliberation, to fall back to Worthington's mill; which I was the more persuaded to, by my desire to have the 6th regiment (whose officers and men were eager to share the dangers of their brother soldiers) perfect and in good order to receive the enemy on his near approach to the city. All retired as I could wish, and were ready to act as circumstances might require it. In this situation you found the brigade on the morning of the 13th, somewhat fatigued, but with increased confidence in ourselves, and renewing our preparation for the annoyance of the enemy alone, if deemed proper, or in conjunction with any other force.

I have thought it due to the merits of my brigade, to detail thus fully their whole movement, and I feel a pride in the belief that the stand made on Monday, in no small degree, tended to check the temerity of the foe, daring to invade a country like ours, and designing the destruction of our city, in whose defence some of the best blood of the country has already been spilt, and for whose safety and protection the citizen soldiers of the 3d brigade are ready to suffer every privation, and meet every danger. Should report be true, (and I doubt not the fact) that the enemy's commanding officer, Major General Ross, was killed in this action, and that the enemy suffered in proportion to his superior numbers, I shall feel still more the valuable consequences of our fight.

The conduct of many company officers and privates, was such as I calculated on; that of most of my field officers also merits my particular notice.—Major Richard K. Heath of the 5th, who led on the advance party to bring on the action, behaved as became an officer, the facts of his first horse being killed under him in the first skirmish, his second being badly wounded, and himself receiving a contusion on the head, by a musket ball, in the general action, are ample proofs of his bravery and exposure in discharge of his duty. Lieut. Col. Sterett, and Major Barry of the 5th, gained my highest approbation, and they unite with all in praise of Captain Spangler and his company of volunteers from York, Pa., then attached to their command; also of Adjutant Cheston, who is slightly wounded. Lieut. Col. Long of the 27th, and his field and company officers, did well; this whole regiment were unsurpassed in bravery, resolution and enthusiasm.—My brigade has to bewail the loss of Adjutant James Lowry Donaldson, who fell in the hottest of the fight, bravely discharging the duties of his commission. Lieut. Col. Fowler, and Major Steiger of the 39th, did their duty in every respect; they speak highly of the volunteer companies of Capt. Quantril, from Hagerstown, and Capt. Metzgar, from Hanover, Pa. Capt. Quantril is wounded. Captain John Montgomery, commander of my artillery, gained for himself and his company lasting honor. Captain Aisquith, and his company of riflemen, merit my thanks. Ensign Wilmot, commanding the company of United Volunteers of the 5th, and many of his men distinguished themselves. To brigade Majors Calhoun and Frailey, I am under great obligations for the prompt and zealous performance of their duty. To my Aid-de-camp, Major George P. Stevenson, too much praise cannot be given, his industry in every arrangement before the fight, and in animating the whole line, was conspicuous; his zeal and courage are of the most ardent kind, the sprightliness of his manners in the most trying scenes had the happiest effect upon all to whom he had to communicate my orders; and the precision with which he delivered my commands, could be exceeded only by the coolness with which he always saw them executed. He was animated, brave, and useful. Major William B. Barney, and Adjutant Lemuel Taylor, of the cavalry, who, having no opportunity of distinction in their regiment owing to the grounds, did me great service, the former in aiding Capt. Montgomery, the latter in conveying my orders through the whole. Mr. Robert Goodloe Harper deserves my thanks. He visited me just before the action; accompanied the advance party, and aided me much throughout. The brave soldiers under my command have suffered many privations, and I recognise among our killed and wounded many valuable men; of which I will make a report in a few days.

I have the honor to be, your obedient servant,

JOHN STRICKER,
Brig. Gen. Com. 3d brigade, M. M.

GENERAL ORDERS.

HEAD-QUARTERS, Baltimore, September 19, 1814.

The enemy having been compelled to retire from before this city, the Major General Commanding takes pleasure in congratulating the troops under his command, upon a relaxation of these severe duties to which they were for some days necessarily exposed. The readiness with which they submitted to privations of every kind was as gratifying to him as the alacrity with which they flew to arms for the protection of the city. He feels a particular pleasure in imparting to every officer and soldier his warm acknowledgments for the zeal they displayed in marching to meet the enemy, whose object by his own declaration is known to be devastation and ruin to every assailable point on the seaboard. It is with peculiar satisfaction the Commanding General seizes this opportunity of acknowledging the very great assistance he has received from the counsel and active exertions of Commodore Rodgers. His exertions and those of his brave officers and seamen, have contributed in a very eminent degree to the safety of the city, and should be remembered with lively emotions of gratitude by every citizen.

The successful defence of Fort M'Henry by Major Armistead of the United States Army having under his command (besides his own corps) three companies of Colonel Harris's regiment of artillery commanded by Captains Berry and Nicholson and Lieut. Pennington and a part of the 36th and 38th regiments of United States Infantry commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Stuart, is beyond all praise. Their gallantry and intrepidity enabled them to defend the Fort against every effort of the enemy, and there is no doubt that this intrepid officer will be rewarded by the Government. The voluntary services of Major Lane of the 14th regiment of United States Infantry were highly useful and duly appreciated by Major Armistead. Lieutenant Newcomb of the Navy, who commanded Fort Covington, and Lieutenant Webster of the flotilla, the city battery, performed their respective duties to the entire satisfaction of the Commanding General.

To Brigadier General Winder he tenders his thanks for his aid, co-operation and prompt pursuit of the enemy. To Brigadier General Douglass with his brigade, and to Colonel Taylor with his regiment of Virginia militia called into service for the defence of Washington, the Commanding General also makes a tender of his acknowledgments. They have sustained privations with patience, and submitted to a soldier's life with a temper that does them credit. To the officers much praise is due for the discipline they have introduced, for their attention to their men, and prompt obedience to orders.

To Brigadier General Stricker and the 3d brigade of Maryland militia, every praise is due; the city being threatened, it became the duty of the citizens to be foremost in its defence. He claimed the honor, and the brave officers and men under his command hailed with delight the opportunity of meeting the enemy's first attack: he met the enemy and engaged him, and when compelled by superior number to retreat, he effected it in order, and rallied on his reserve, and from thence retired to the ground which had been assigned him near the line. The particulars of the action and the just praise due to each officer, are given by the Brigadier General in his report. He reports the 27th regiment under Colonel Long, as having in a particular manner distinguished itself—he gives due praise to the 5th, under Colonel Sterrett, and 39th under Colonel Fowler. He reports that his reserve under Colonel M'Donald merited his approbation, and that the artillery under Captain Montgomery highly distinguished itself. He applauds in terms which are flattering, the conduct of Major Pinckney's battalion of riflemen, the command of which on this occasion having devolved on Captain Dyer. He mentions in honorable terms the bravery and good conduct of Major Heath of the 5th, who had two horses shot under him, and of Captains Spangler and Metzgar commanding companies from Pennsylvania, and of Captain Quantil with a company from Hagerstown.

The Pennsylvania volunteers without commissions, repaired to the post of danger, chose officers and organized themselves into regiments, performed all the duties of soldiers and have recommended themselves in a particular manner to the attention of the Commanding General. Much praise is also due to Generals Stansbury and Forman. Their men came out principally en masse, and when assembled were to be organized, armed, equipped and disciplined. All this has been effected through their indefatigable exertions. To these gentlemen the Commanding General tenders his sincere thanks. The enthusiasm shown by their men on the approach of the enemy, gave a full assurance that reliance might be placed on them.

The light corps under Major Randall performed in a manner highly honorable the services assigned it, and the Major's conduct evinced a firmness, bravery and talent for a military life.

The excellent discipline and order of the artillery under Colonel Harris, and marine artillery under Captain Stiles, affords a certainty of their good conduct. The regularity that prevails in those corps does them honor and affords an excellent example to others. Fatiguing as were the duties imposed on United States Cavalry under Captain Bird, and the militia cavalry under Lieutenant Colonels Moor, Biays, Street and Tilghman, and Captain Lee, they were performed with an alacrity and promptness highly honorable to the officers and men. To Captain Thompson of the Flying Artillery and his company, the Commanding General tenders his thanks for their unremitting personal attention as his guard, their readiness in carrying orders and the various separate duties assigned them, and to Major Barney and Captain Thompson with their corps of observation for the correct information received from them.

The guns at the Lazaretto were well served by Lieutenant Rutter of the Flotilla, whose conduct in the discharge of that, as well as the highly important duty of advanced night guards to the Fort, has met the entire approbation of the Commanding General. To the committee of vigilance and safety he feels himself under particular obligations to acknowledge the many advantages he derived from their exertions in providing the means necessary for defence.

Such was the determined zeal evinced on the part of every brigade and corps under his command, that the Commanding General is impressed with a full conviction, that had the enemy made his attack it would have terminated in his discomfiture and defeat.

By order of Major General S. Smith,

WM. BATES, Assist. Adj. Gen. D. M. M.

DIVISION ORDERS.

Division Head Quarters, New-Church Street,

September 15th, 1814.

Brigadier General Winder congratulates the troops of his command upon the suspension of the severe duties to which they have been exposed for the last four days.

The Garrison of Fort M'Henry under the command of Major Armistead, are entitled to, and receive, the warmest acknowledgments and praise from the Brigadier General for their steady, firm and intrepid deportment during an almost incessant bombardment for twenty-four hours, during which time they were exposed to an incessant shower of shells.

The militia artillery of the 3d brigade under Captains Nicholson and Berry, and Lieutenant Pennington, vied with the regulars in a firmness and composure which would have honored veterans, and prove that they were worthy to co-operate with the regular artillery, infantry and sea fencibles in defence of that important post. Major Armistead receives also the warmest acknowledgments of the Brigadier General Commanding for his able, vigilant and exact arrangements before and during this period of arduous duty, as well as for the uniform zeal, vigor and ability he has discovered in his preparations for the defence of the post immediately committed to his charge, as for the prompt and efficacious manner in which he has complied under great and perplexing difficulties with demands from all quarters for ammunition.

Lieutenant Colonel Steuart and Major Lane, neither of whom were required to expose themselves in this dangerous post, will please accept the Brigadier General's warmest acknowledgments for the handsome and gallant manner in which they volunteered to take command of the regular infantry; who with their officers and men, have evinced the most resolute and steady intrepidity in the midst of imminent and long continued danger.

The squadron of the United States Light Dragoons under Captain Bird, have proved by the indefatigable and bold manner in which they have constantly kept upon the very lines of the enemy under the fire of his guards and the regular, and exact intelligence which they have constantly given of his situation, that they want nothing but an opportunity to signalize themselves. The bold and intrepid charge which Sergeant Keller, of Captain Bird's company, made upon the rear guard of the retreating enemy with but three dragoons in which he dispersed a guard of 18 fusileers, taking six of them prisoners in despite of their fire and that of a four pounder within half cannister distance which made three discharges at him, deserves the highest approbation, and the skill and dexterity with which he accomplished this bold achievement proves he will be competent to a more considerable command to which the justice of his Government will no doubt advance him.

Brigadier General Douglass with his entire brigade of Virginia militia have evinced during four days of the most active and arduous duties, under the severest privations of rest and refreshment, in constant exposure to the unusual inclemency of the weather for the season, a patience, obedience, and alacrity for the most dangerous duties which cannot be surpassed; and the prompt and eager pursuit in which they yesterday engaged, after the retreating enemy, in the midst of heavy and constant rain after such a series of suffering and fatigue, is the best evidence which can be given that the patriotism which so promptly led them to the field in defence of their country, was bottomed upon a courage which danger and difficulty cannot subdue.

Lieutenant Col. Griffin Taylor with his regiment also of Virginia militia who was left in charge of the defences in part on the Ferry-branch, has proved by his judicious arrangements and the zealous manner in which he was supported by his men and officers, that he only wanted an occasion to prove himself and them the worthy coadjutors of their countrymen.

The enemy has retired from our city and it is to be hoped under such circumstances as will deter him from again attempting it. Those gallant Virginians will have the consolation of believing they have essentially contributed to its safety.

The enemy however has at present only taken refuge in his ships—he still remains in our vicinity and may and probably will return if he knows there is the least relaxation of vigilance or readiness. The Commanding officers of corps and detachments will therefore exert themselves with unremitting diligence to repair the damages of the late fatigue and exposure—to refresh their troops and hold them in readiness for moving at a moment's warning.

By order.

ROBT. G. HITE,

Assistant Adjutant General.

DISCHARGE OF THE BALTIMORE MILITIA.

Adjutant General's Office, 10th Military District.

Baltimore, 18th Nov., 1814.

GENERAL ORDERS. The whole of the 3d Maryland brigade, with the exception of Capt. Thompson's troop, Lieutenant Colonel Harris's regiment artillery and Captain Stiles' corps of marine artillery, will as soon as mustered to-day, consider themselves discharged from the service of the United States.

The Major General in taking leave of this fine body of citizen soldiers, who have done themselves and country so much honor, offers to them the thanks of the United States, for their distinguished services.

To Lieutenant Colonel McDonald, who has for a short time commanded the brigade, the Major General tender his thanks, personally, for his prompt and strict attention to duty; also to Lieutenant Colonel Sterrett, whose attentions to the guard for head quarters, furnished from his handsome regiment, have been highly pleasing.

The regiments and corps discharged will turn over to the military store keeper, the arms, ammunition, accoutrements and knapsacks, which have been received from the United States. The arms received from the State of Maryland will be retained by the troops.

(Signed)

By command,

W. SCOTT.

SECOND DIVISION.

CHARLES T. HOLLOWAY, MARSHAL.

The second division of the parade was composed of volunteer firemen from out-of-town points, with our own veterans, with their ancient apparatus, heading the line.

Chief Holloway, with his silver speaking-trumpet and smiling face, at the head of his aids, led the division, with the Americus Band. Behind them came a barouche containing three of the vets knocked out by Father Time. They were Leml. S. Prince, aged 84, and William H. H. Turner, aged 78, who once ran with the old Independents in their palmy days, and Edward Horner, aged 85, one of the followers of the Columbia machine away back in the forties.

Marshal Holloway's aids were Gen. R. N. Bowerman, Henry Lutz, Capt. John H. Katzenberger, Augustus Albert, W. O. Beckenbaugh, W. J. Carroll, William P. Reilly, Robert St. J. Stewart, with a personal staff consisting of the visiting chief engineers and ex-chief engineers, assistant engineers and ex-assistant engineers, and officers and delegates representing fire associations from other cities.

The Baltimore veterans' float was in the front rank, and the old engines on it, odd-looking and strange as they were to those of this generation, were as familiar friends to their fathers and grandfathers. On the back part of the float was the "Grandfather," as the Vets affectionately call it—a little, old, battered hand-engine, about six feet long and three feet high, built in 1764. It was discovered in a barnyard in Frederick about two years ago, and was afterwards brought to Baltimore with its companion, the Snake reel with its coil of copper-riveted leather hose, by the Frederick association and presented to the Baltimore veterans. The reel followed the float. Alongside the "Grandfather" on the float, and attended by four old firemen with their funny little oilcloth capes and hats that looked like tin buckets with brims to them, was the old Dolphin suction, painted like its ancient companion, in red and black, but it is a finer and more elaborate machine. Its upper works are supported at the corners by four bronze dolphins, and from these it took its name. It was the Mechanical Company's machine in the early days of that company, and years afterward it was found in Cambridge, where it had done efficient service. Above it floated the Columbia Company's banner of blue silk, with a painting on it representing a fireman rescuing a girl in her Sunday clothes from a burning building in the dead of the night. Below it was the motto, "To save from fire is our desire."

These were followed by the members of the association, walking six abreast, with their double-deck gallery engine "Fairy," drawn by four horses. This engine was originally owned by the Fairmount Company, of Philadelphia, and when built in 1845 was considered the finest engine in the country. The Fairmount veterans took part in the parade, and almost every one of them went up to take a look and affectionately stroke the machine that was once the pride of their city.

A little further on and hauled along by hand was the old engine of the Patapsco Company, "the Volunteer," which was rescued from a junk shop on Thames street some years ago by the venerable Peter Logue, who boasts of never having been in a theatre in his life.

The Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association of Washington, with their hose carriage, the Hope Hose and Steam Fire Company, with their hose carriage, the Waterwitch Hook and Ladder Company, with handsome truck, and Friendship Company, No. 1, of Alexandria, Va., completed the first section.

The other companies of veterans in the division were the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association of Brooklyn, N. Y., who had a double-deck gallery engine, a sister to the Fairy of the Baltimore Vets.; the Active Association of Volunteer Firemen, of Philadelphia, and the Fairmount Company of Philadelphia, with their old red machine, built in 1791, decorated with steers' horns, and the motto, "Prompt to Action."

The Baltimore men had special pleasure in receiving their guests from a distance, two of whom were old "Baltimore boys." They were J. W. Kentzell and Henry A. Chase, of the Exempt Company, of San Francisco, and G. M. Ottinger, chief of the Salt Lake City fire department, who ran with the Deptford Company of Baltimore from 1854 to 1858. These, with Edward Koontz, President of the Juniors, of Frederick, Md., and W. T. Robinson, of Portsmouth, Va., were appointed special aids to Marshal Holloway.

A few of the companies had the ancient apparatus, now long out of use. The Winchester (Va.) boys, calling themselves the Sarah Zane Steam Fire Company, No. 1, had their original hand engine, a small double-decker, presented to them by their patron saint, Miss Sarah Zane, in 1840. The Hampton (Va.) boys, W. J. Weymouth in command, dragged the old Lafayette gallery suction along, and had a good time of it, too. This old engine was and still is a pretty good machine.

The Bay Ridge and Coney Island companies, of New York, hauled the old Deptford double-deck engine, which has, after a varied and useful career, returned to its home in Baltimore. When the company disbanded the engine was sold to a company in Frederick, who, after years of service, sold it to Winchester, Va, where it was discovered and bought by Mr. Holloway.

The Altoona boys, the Pennsylvania Railroad's firemen at Altoona, Pa., had the largest number of active men in line, and attracted a great deal of attention and no small amount of applause by their fancy marching.

The Catskill (N.Y.) boys were the dudes of the procession, and were remarkable for their uniformity of dress, their handsome appearance and their excellent marching. They were dressed in faultlessly fitting uniforms of fawn-colored cloth, and each man wore fawn-colored kid gloves and leather helmets of the same hue. They had with them their pretty hose carriage.

The Chambers Company, of Portsmouth, Va., with their fine band, received an ovation.

The other companies that took part in the parade were the Chemical Engine Company, No. 1, Manchester, Md.; Waterwitch Hose Company, No. 1, Port Deposit, Md.; Independent Fire Company, Annapolis, Md.; Reilly Hose Company, No. 1, Harrisburg, Pa.; Vigilant Fire Company, No. 1, York, Pa.; Phoenix Hose Company, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Active Association of Volunteer Firemen's Association, Philadelphia Pa.; Fame Hose Company, No. 1, Wilmington, Del.; Independent Fire Company, Portsmouth Va.; Bristol Fire Company, Bristol, Pa.; Frostburg Fire Company, Frostburg Md.; Fort Hamilton Fire Company, Fort Hamilton, N. Y.; Moyamensing Hook and Ladder Company, Chester, Pa.; Independent Fire Company, of Frederick, Md.; American Hose and Hook and Ladder Company, Pennsylvania; Good Intent Fire Company, Pottsville, Pa.; The Good-Will Hook and Ladder Company, of Atlantic City, N. J. The majority of these brought their own bands with them, and the second division was probably the most musical in line.

THIRD DIVISION.

SAMUEL W. REGESTER, MARSHAL.

The third division was composed of officers of the modern city fire department, members of engine and truck companies, with apparatus and floats carrying chemical engine. The gallant firemen received their share of applause from the spectators, and deserved it all. The bearing of the men was free, steady, impressive. Wright's Band of 25 pieces preceded the division. The marshal of this division was one of Baltimore's Fire Commissioners.

FOURTH DIVISION.

GEN. THOMAS J. SHRYOCK, MARSHAL.

A gay tattoo was beaten upon the stones by the hoofs of the prancing horses as Gen. Thos. J. Shryock and his staff of seventy-six aids marched at the head of the fourth division. Gen.

Shryock has in several parades introduced novelties in the equipment of his aids, and he repeated his former efforts with splendid effect. The young men who composed his staff carried white riding crops, used a white bridle, and wore white kid gloves, white straw hats with white bands, dark cutaway coat, white vest, drab corduroy trousers, and bronze medals struck at the Philadelphia mint. Thus attired upon their spirited horses they were received with applause. Henry R. Vonderhorst carried the white silken division colors, and John F. Schultz was bearer of the oriole colors.

The Uniformed Knights of the Golden Eagle were first in line, Lieut.-Gen. Louis E. Stilz, of Philadelphia, and his staff. Adj.-Gen. J. Marple Hurtt, Inspector-Gen. Samuel M. Woods, Assistant Adj.-Gen. Robert R. Hodge, Surgeon-Gen. Dr. J. E. Whiteford, with Col. James Billingsley, of Baltimore, and Col. Wilbur R. Rich, of Atlantic City, richly uniformed, marched in front of the Knights of the Golden Eagle drum corps, and Major B. M. Cross had immediate control of the Maryland Battalion, 150 men. The Supreme Chief of the order is Mr. R. Emory Enniss, of Baltimore, and with his staff, Grand Chief of the State N. S. M. Morton, Past Supreme Chief James Young and Past Chief Wm. Weaver, occupied carriages in the line. The Pennsylvania division was large. Brig.-Gen. M. C. Stafford and staff commanded it. Col. Steinbach had charge of the First Regiment, Col. Long of the Second and Col. Bigard of the Third. Unattached visiting Commanderries, among them Wilmington, (Del.) Washington and Philadelphia delegations, with bands, helped swell the ranks of the well-drilled and handsomely uniformed Knights.

The Knights of Pythias presented an imposing appearance, their broadcloth suits and elaborate gold and velvet regalia making them among the most conspicuous bodies in line. John A. Schwartz was in command of the Knights. Fraukensfield's West Philadelphia Band furnished marching music for them. Capt. Nicholas Tegges commanded the mounted Knights. Capt. Harry C. Cox had command of the Pythian Drill Association, No. 1; Capt. Harry Kemp, of Monumental, No. 2; Capt. John Block, of Baltimore, No. 3; P. H. Lenderking, of Maryland, No. 4; Capt. Edw. Appell, of Steuben, No. 5; Capt. Walter Hevern, of Ivanhoe, No. 6; Capt. Jesse G. Gosnell, of Druid, No. 7; Washington, No. 1, Nelson, No. 2, and Columbia, No. 3, of Washington; Wilmington, No. 1, of Wilmington, Rathbone, No. 8, of Alexandria, and Black Prince, No. 37, of New Freedom, Pa., were the visiting divisions.

The societies of St. George, St. Andrew and the Caledonian Society were represented in the division.

The Manual Training School placed eighty-five of its scholars in the procession, uniformed in white caps and yellow badges. A float carried specimens of the work of the scholars in wood, tin and metals.

Capt. Thos. P. Baldwin was in command of the Manual Training School and the public school pupils, the latter, 200 strong, in four divisions, being under the immediate command of James Young, Jr. Fifty colored Scholars marched proudly in rear of Capt. Young's Division.

The Friendship Drum Corps headed the Order United American Mechanics, and Liberty Council, No. 24, turned out a goodly display.

Capt. A. G. Welsh, Jr., issued the orders to the Ellsworth Rifle Corps, which drilled with fine effect. The Cadets of Temperance followed, the Riverside Band of Port Deposit Md., preceding.

The Catholic Parochial schools contributed largely to the parade, and their neatly uniformed scholars were applauded all along the route. The Cadets of St. James School, little fellows all of them, wore a zouave uniform of blue and red, and with wooden guns presented the manual of arms drill with precision and promptness. Captain Harry Laritz was in command. St. Michael's Cadets, John Baier, captain, wore a uniform nearly similar and drilled in an admirable manner. St. John's Temperance Cadets, Captain Owen Kehler; Temperance Cadets of the Lady of Good Council, from Locust Point, Dominick Roche in command; the scholars of Calvert Hall, St. Joseph's Academy, marshaled by brothers of the institution; St. Peter's Temperance Cadets, St. Vincent's scholars, St. Alphonsus' school, the scholars from the Immaculate Conception, St. Patrick's, St. Joseph's, St. Mary's Star of the Sea, and St. Martin's scholars were all neatly uniformed in red caps, and some with sashes, and marched over the long route with unflagging steps. Brothers Quintian, Virgil and Julius rode in a carriage in rear of the school-boys.

For the Uniformed Catholic Knights Hoffman's Band was secured, and its martial airs marked the time for one of the largest and best drilled bodies in the parade. The Catholic Knights were out in force. Capt. Michael Lotz was in command, and back of him stretched a long line of societies, each fully uniformed. The societies were: Knights of St. Michael, Capt. John King; St. George, Capt. Antoine Schalitzy; St. Paul, Captain L. I. Ripple; St. Francis, Julius Hoffman; St. James, Capt. Andrew Shaffer; St. Wenceslaus, Capt. Joseph F. Shimanek; St. Vladislaus, Capt. Joseph Sibeski; St. Albert, Captain Schultz; St. Aloysius, Capt. John Flynn; St. Joseph, Capt. J. I. Gilchrist; St. Vincent, Captain J. A. Stewarts; St. Francis, (colored,) Capt. Smith; Latin Cross, Capt. Lawrence Mohr; St. Patrick, Capt. Michael Keeney.

The display by St. Mary's Industrial School was one of the features. Two hundred boys, some small and some large, uniformed in gray suits trimmed with blue, and wearing blue caps, marched like veterans. The boys presented at the same time examples of their work. One float, 34 feet long, contained under arches of black and gold a printing press operated by a boy, and stocking knitting machines, at which three boys worked. Over the entire float were placed specimens of the labor of the scholars. The rear was filled with products of the garden and farm. A second float carried water and provisions for the boys, while a large vehicle contained all the trustees and the board of directors. Dr. R. H. Goldsmith commanded the division.

S. R. Jackson commanded the Patriotic Sons of America, who were accompanied by a float representing Washington at Valley Forge. The latter was unusually well executed. The Pennsylvania division of the Patriotic Sons of America participated with full ranks.

The order of the Shield of Honor was commanded by Wm. J. Cunningham. The Supreme Lodge, the Grand Lodge and various visiting lodges were in 33 open barouches, each member carrying an open Japanese parasol. The float of the Golden Eagles represented a widow seated beneath a canopy and two orphans, horns of plenty emptying their goods at their feet.

The floats of the benevolent organizations were features of a division so full of color and brilliancy as General Shryock's. That of the Golden Chain was one of the handsomest in the line. A number of tableaux showed the helping hand of the association keeping want from the widow and orphan. On a pedestal was a statue of a widow holding in her hand her husband's certificate of membership. On the rear of the float a large and exceedingly good representation of a cloud was constructed and from it an angel looked down upon another tableau of contented children.

The Catholic Benevolent Legion float helped to make the parade a success. It represented a room in which the amount of money for which a deceased husband was insured was being paid the widow.

The members of the Order of Iron Hall rode in carriages, and placed in line two elaborate floats.

The Royal Arcanum section was large, the members riding in carriages. A float of unique design, representative of the aims of the order, was entered in the line by it.

The front division was concluded with the W. H. Smith Drill Corps, colored, and the Veteran Corps, colored, the latter commanded by Capt. Jno. B. Briscoe.

The aids of Gen. Shryock were: A. E. Booth, F. C. Bolton, John Burns, Jr., Wm. W. Berry, Roger Barron, George W. Bartlett, R. H. Conway, Chas. Clark, A. J. Carr, Thomas A. Charsee, E. Pratt Callow, E. J. Dowell, Wm. Diffenderfer, J. J. Duffy, John R. Dorsey, T. A. B. Dukehart, Col. Patrick Duff, Wm. C. Ditman, Richard H. Diggs, Charles Dilworth, F. G. Evans, Robert Eccles, S. W. FIFTH DIVISION.

COL. HEINRICH C. TIECK, MARSHAL.

Like a picture dropped from some Teutonic frame of mediæval times was the grand display of the fifth or German division, marshaled by Col. Heinrich C. Tieck. His chief of staff was Parry Lee Downs, and his color-bearer Aug. F. Kaiser. Two lofty temples, 24 feet high, that gleamed with white and glistened from touches of gold, heralded from afar the Teutonic display, breathing in every touch the savor of fatherland, its song and art, its costume and its science, simplicity, sports and beverages.

After the marshal, his aids, four surgeons and the thirty special aids of the Germania Riding Club, clad in snowy breeches and helmets, black velvet jackets and leather leggings, came in advance of the ambulance, emblazoned with the red cross of Malta, without which no German procession is ever complete. It was in charge of Henry Bishop and was provided with stretcher, and plenty of ice, medicines, cordials and bandages. Then hove into full view the German-American float containing the temples, which represented "America and Germania United" with the advancement of their domains, as designed and constructed by Prof. Otto Fuchs.

Riding in advance came the mounted herald trumpeting aloud. Upon his head sat the puffed beretta and upon his form the gayly embroidered silk tunic of crimson and black and russet leggings. Three noble women of the seventeenth century came next in the persons of Miss Mary Zaiser, Miss Nettie Zaiser, and Miss Lizzie Teipe, local horse women. They were dressed in satin trains and puffed sleeves, one wearing blue, one pink and the other purple richly embroidered. Upon their heads were Gretchen caps, studded with gems. Six gallant knights of brave Wallenstein's period rode after in velvet-slashed costumes, sleeves of blue satin, white felt hats, gilded sashes, broad silver buckles and swords. Six noble Huguenots in costume and six Land's knights, or knights guards were next and then the float of the United German Singers came.

It was ten feet broad and 36 feet long. On the front left corner was the American Indian in magnificent dress, and upon the other corner was the ancient Teuton in bear skins, with his horned fur cap. Next was a Gothic temple of white and gold, surrounded by four allegorical groups of art, poetry, music and science. A Raphael sitting at his easel with a bust beside him was the representative of art. A young lady dressed in classic Greek costume, reclining upon an antique seat, holding a tablet and pencil, and having a surrounding of books, the representation of poetry. Music was represented by a group of three ladies in Greek dress, one holding a lyre, the others playing upon double reed pipes. At the right was the savan of science, surrounded by globe, telescopes and books. Within the temple, under an open canopy, sat Mother Ceres; before her were two wheat sheaves, and in her hands were sickel and flowers. Gay bannerettes ornamented the structure, together with shields and flags.

Then came the ocean waves, in which two globes floated. One showed America, the other Europe, and in each was a tall flagstaff, one having the American and the other the German flag. In the rear was a ledge of rocks upon which was an octagonal base, from which rose six marble columns supporting the dome of the United States Capitol. Within, in magnificent silk dresses, were Columbia with shield and Germania with the great sword, studded vest of armor and gold-jeweled crown. Upon the platform were shrubs, trees and flowers, while the graceful trimmings of the float were maroon and gold.

Attending this float were twelve medieval knights, guards of Lansquenets on foot, and behind came twelve more. Each of the six horses was draped in black, white and red—the German colors—and each was attended by a groom in broad white felt hat, brass collar and top boots.

Twenty carriages, the first of which contained President Louis Schneider, of the United Singers, with his coadjutors, Louis Warkmeister, John Hoffmeister and Frederick Scheidt, followed, each bearing the pretty banner of one of the following societies: Baltimore Liederkranz, Harmonie, Germania Mænnerchor, Frohsin, East Baltimore Liederkranz, Arbeiter Mænnerchor, Baltimore Liedertafel, Arbeiter Liedertafel, Orpheus Mænnerchor, Thalia Mænnerchor, Canton Mænnerchor, Sængerrunde, Franz Abt Mænnerchor, Germania Mænnerchor Club, Baltimore Liederkranz Club, Concordia Club, German Orphan Asylum, General German Aged Men's Home.

The German shipping interest was displayed in great style. Officers under Captain Kuhlman, of the North German Lloyd steamship America, were followed by the Stevedores' Association, with a miniature of the America.

After carriages with officers of the organization came the big float of the German Correspondent. This was an Oriental temple of eight columns, trimmed with bannerettes, and having an arched top. Surrounding it were ten figurantes, representing every part of the globe from which the news comes. At the rear were a half-dozen Africans in a grove of tropical plants. This concluded the first sub-division of the fifth division.

The second sub-division was composed of the fat, hearty-looking butchers in carriages or a horse, with tall silk hats and white aprons. The horses drawing the butchers' floats had the significant motto, "Live and Let Live." It was evident that the butchers had carried out at least the first part of the motto. Their floats represented three stories. Upon the first were fat beeves, on the second calves good enough for a hundred prodigal sons. Above were sheep.

The third sub-division was mostly beer. There were plenty of floats and there was enough beer to float twice as many. The National Brewing Company and the Fort Marshal Brewery had warlike floats. The former was a monitor made of kegs, with a frowning turret from which protruded beer kegs for cannons, indicative, no doubt, of "shootin' 'em up." Each of its six horses was mounted by a colored man dressed in the spotless white United States navy uniform. Fort Marshal Brewery had a counterfeit of the old earthen fort that stood upon its site, and cannons were pointed toward the crowd. Nearly every float had a Gambrinus holding out the biggest five cent schooner in town.

The exhibit of the George Bauernschmidt Brewing Company was a practical idea of the way in which beer is manufactured. The float was a beer brewery in miniature, and contained an engine and boiler, steam kettle, mash tub, hop jack, hot and cold water tanks, surface cooler, Bartlett cooler, elevators and malt mill, the cellar where the beer casks are stowed, and the sample room, these latter being arranged in the rear of the float. The process of manufacturing beer was gone through in imitation of the real thing. The company had a tent at Pimlico, under which the float was on exhibition to the public. The float was 27 feet long, 10 feet wide and 22 feet high, and the lower part contained a fringe of canvas, on which was painted a scene of a cellar in a brewery, showing the manner in which the casks are stowed.

Vonderhorst & Son had a float giving typical scenes in beer brewing. It was an artistic exhibit. The centre of the float contained a thirty-five-barrel beer cask. Roosting upon this was an immense carved eagle, six feet six inches from tip of tail to point of beak, holding a large gilded V in the mouth. This is the trade-mark of the firm. On each side and in rear of the float were the heads of beer barrels. On each side of the forward part were heads of Gambrinus, done in plaster of Paris and cement and painted. Each of these was mounted on shields of the United States and held a white streamer floating from the eagle's beak. Each beer barrel was decorated with a wreath of cedar, and surrounding the Gambrinus heads were sheaves of barley. Over the large cask were entwined malt vines to represent how the plant grows.

The brewery of J. F. Wiesner turned out a float with a crimson plush throne, canopied by the Maryland colors and a background of red, white and blue. A Gambrinus sat there. At his feet, under a golden eagle, sat two ladies in décolleté style, personating the Goddess of Liberty and Germania. Before these were beer barrels, around which were green hop vines. Gambrinus held an immense silver cup.

George Brehm's float was a rock grotto, with brick arches, from which rose a tall castellated watch-tower. Polished kegs—beer kegs, of course—and a big barrel filled it up, the driver was on the barrel.

While others had a practical illustration of brewing beer, John Bauernschmidt, Jr., had a still more practical one, of drawing beer. Three barrels with operative spigots were moistening the crowd and keeping the parade from becoming a dry show.

Darley Park had an Eiffel tower with barreled dampness at every landing.

The Globe brewery had a float as tasteful as its Munich beer. A tremendous cask handsomely painted rested upon an immense rock, and a golden globe surmounted the whole.

The Baltimore Brewing Company had a series of steps filled with little girls in white dresses, who whiled away the tedium of the procession by drinking pop. At the top was Gambrinus with a page in handsome costume.

George Guenther had a chariot drawn by buck goats, which Gambrinus was driving, with a fresh keg from a cool grotto.

Bayview had four big schooners full of mock beer with cotton foam.

Engel, Kirchheimer & Regnier, coppersmiths, had a big steam jack gayly painted with emblems of the brewing business.

Following the floats were brewmasters driving in barouches. The Onkel Braesig Verein was redolent of the North German's beloved Low Germany. Onkel Braesig himself, the patron of the nation, sat before just such a straw thatched structure with concrete walls as many adopted Americans were born under. Dressed in the long brown Hanoverian coat capped with fur, knee breeches and leggins, he was accompanied by his favorite nieces, Minnekin and Linnekin, as so beautifully related by the revered poet Fritz Reuter, the bard of the Low Germans.

The other float was the one showing the village lads and lassies going to the Kirmess dressed in their native costumes. The lads wore broad white collars, red suspenders, knee breeches, straw broadbrims and gay ties. The floats were decorated exactly as in village Deutschland, with gilt and colored paper.

The societies of the Black Knights, Order of Harugari, and Dr. Martin Luther Sick Benefit Association concluded this sub-division.

In the fourth and last sub-division were the Sons of Bohemia, with Louis Benick, marshal, and aids, F. J. Ruzicka, John Proley, M. Benech, Joseph Lebeda, F. Shimek, Thomas Kudril, K. Feter, Jos. Jerabeck, D. Zelenka, John Payril, A. Sesula, Jos. Feilman, Jacob Weis, K. Hurt.

The Bohemia Gymnastic Association, in neat blue blouses, black trousers and black Alpine hats, were followed by the Bohemian "Casino" Pleasure Assembly and lodges of the C. S. P. S. and C. S. P. O. The Bohemian Young Men's Association Hoezde concluded the fifth division.

SIXTH DIVISION.

MAJOR J. G. PANGBORN, MARSHAL.

An almost interminable line of floats and business wagons that were a mass of brilliant colors, an exhibition of nearly every conceivable manufactured product, with numerous illustrations of the process of manufacture, together with beautiful, artistic and allegorical representations, the whole interspersed with bands of music and attended with the greatest enthusiasm—such was the trades display. The various firms entered into the affair with such enthusiasm and were so liberal in expending money to decorate their floats that the result could not have been otherwise than creditable.

The floats were built in the workshops or yards of the firms, and when constructed were usually too large and unwieldy to be removed bodily to the street. On this account they were built in sections, and when completed were dismantled, to be reconstructed just prior to starting for the parade. This work was begun at midnight Sunday, and in a number of cases was barely completed in time to join the procession.

The display occupied the sixth division and was the longest in the whole parade. It was under the direction of Major J. G. Pangborn, chief marshal, who rode on horseback in front, with Col. Wm. A. Boykin, chief of staff. Among the bands in this section were the United States Marine Band, the Naval Academy Band, Fourth Pennsylvania Regiment Band and Philadelphia City Drum Corps, Maryland Cornet Band, Chesapeake City Band, Burgoyne's Band, Americus Piccolo Band, United
